

Through June 30, Hawaii residents have given nearly $220,000 to 15 of the candidates running for president. The information comes from the Federal Elections Commission, and was updated on July 15 for money collected through June 30. Some candidates received contributions of more than $2,300, which is the maximum that can be given per election. The general election is considered a separate election. For instance, Sen. Barack Obama was given $2,800 in donations from one individual. Of that, $2,300 is applied to the primary and $500 to the general election.
